ARABIN IN MEXICO.

SEN. COMONFORT'S ADDRESS TO EX-PRESIDENT CARRERA.

We stated in our Mexicon news, published yesterday, that Sen. Comonfort had addressed a letter to the then President of interim—Sen. Martin Carrera—declining to accept his invitation to meet the other revolutionary chiefs at Dolores. As Comonfort fooms up largely in connection with the prize of the Presidency, his acts are important just new, and therefore we translate the text of the communication referred to. It is as follows:—YOUR EXCELINGY.—The very great events which have trien place in the capital of the republic, after the flight of Sen. Santa Anna, have complicated our situation in so extraordinary a manner that they have necessitated the greatest devotion and the greatest prudence on the part of its Mexicans who have any esteem for their country, to draw her out of the lamentable condition to which military tyranny has reduced her.

But far from that being the case, the undersigned remarks, with the deepest grief, that on the occasion of these events private aspirations are given the rein, and that every one, while invoking the sacred names of independence and of legal order, aspires nevertheless to turn the profit of the individual or of a class, the noblest sacrifices of the Mexican people—a guilty course of conduct, which the interesting history of this epoch, fecund in the strangest somersets, will know how to quality with the manne it merits.

All invoke the plan of Ayutla, which is notoriously, and acknowledged even by those having the greatest interest morposing it, the only plans of rafety left to a safer the interest morposing it, the only plans of rafety left to a safer the interest morposing it, the only plans of rafety left to a safer the interest morposing it, the only plans of rafety left to a safer her earlies the tribungh of the principles which it embraces. The second article of the plan is so conclusive and so easily understood that it can be misunderstood, as it appears to be by some of those who affirm that they h position who will not deem himself called on to exercise public power. Each has his plotters and his partisans, and as the command is not divisible, there must result therefrom a clash of interests which may cause the very dissolution of society.

The argument might be resorted to that the plan of Ayutla does not suppose the event of its being adopted by the garrison of Mexico, because that being the last interenhment of tyramy, it could not be thought that it would become of its own volition an auxiliary of the cause invoked in said plan. It know not what foundation such a strange idea may have, but in supposing that the plan of Ayutla contained it implicitly, that did not protect the nation from the inconveniences of utter anarchy—the principal point to which we all ought to direct our attention—for the persons who have adopted the plan of Ayutla by force of circumstances cannot inspire confidence and have no exclusive right to arrogate to themselves the command, while there are so many others who have better or equal titles to exercise it. God knows that I do not speak either for myself or for the honest republican placed by the hand of Providence in the arid mountains of Guerrero, there to watch over the liberty and the glory of the nation. I say so because already, on different points, movements are rising which visibly tent to give the command of this republic to the persons who are at the head of the army at those places, without, any other title for thus changing the plan of Ayutla thou the force of arms and the trivial and worn out pretext of preventing the snarchy which, on the contrary, they favor by these asphantions.

Even at Mexico, through identical motives, another banner is raised, the plan is broken through, his Excellency Mr. Carren convoices and it is pretended that these chiefe shall nominate the President of the republic, and shall intervene, though in an indirect mole in the convocation of the legislative corps. In these plans there is no regard of persons, and although I consider those w eightal. The resources of this division are limited to the extent of the territory which it occupies, reckoning upon the absolute co-operation of the brave army of the North, and upon the decided opinion unanimously manifested by the above mentioned departments and by the people of the republic in general, through the press.

A good proof of what I state in the preceding paragraph is that the most respectable citizens resking in the places where the armed force proclaiming the plan of Ayutla, has medified it in the terms which it thought proper, have expressed in a very positive manner their aversion to these changes either in assembling to protest against them, or in addressing to the representatives the chiefest of which is the exact accomplishment of what has been offered to the nation, and of what has served it as a guarantee in its glorious and constant strife against the tyrant; so that in every way it follows that the national will will only be satisfied by the application, with scrupulous exactitude of the plan of Ayutla, which recognizes in the nation the right to mame its chief magistrate and to convoke through its intermediary a national convention, thereby rendering null and inefficacious personal aspiration to the benefit of a majority of Mexicans.

These reasons influence me not to depart from the line of notice weathlished by the plan of Ayutla. Neverthecacious personal aspiration to the benefit of a majority of Mexicans.

These reasons influence me not to depart from the line of policy established by the plan of Ayutla. Nevertheless, if the nation shall manifest hereafter, and in an unmistakable manner, its will in favor of any of the new programmes which are in name only the plan of Ayutla. I should be the first to submit myself to it, even though I should be obliged, in deing so, to sacrifice my own deas, my repose, and even, my very existence; so that if his Excellency General Alvarez commands me not to insist on the heatile attitude which I have taken, I shall immediately yield, in obedience to his superior orders. Under such circumstances, it only remains to me to know your Excellency's opinion on the points alluded to in this note, and I beg you will impart to me by courier, with all the frankness which characterizes you. Retterating to your Excellency the assurance of my consideration and esteem. God and liberty.

GUADALAJARA, Aug. 28, 1855.

The Trait d'Union states that General Carrera received

The Trait d'Union states that General Carrera received a subsequent communication from General Comoniort, disnowing the government existing in Mexico, and treating as worthless the convocation summoned at Do-treating as wortness the convocation summoned at Dolores.

The Prait d'Union also gives the political complexion of the various revolutionary leaders, as follows:—
Vidaurri demands the extinction of the army, of which the plan of Ayutla preclaims the conservation.

Hare y Tamariz supports himself on the clergy and on the army, the two great levers of the despotism overthrown by the plan of Ayutla.

Comonfort wants the application of the plan of Ayutla as modified at Acapulco.

La Llave guarantees the properties of the clergy, of which the plan of Ayutla does not say a word.

The partisans of the government of Mexico (Carrera's) pursue the application of the plan of Ayutla as modified by the garrison.

pursue the application of the plan of Ayutla as modified by the garrison.

The extreme purists do not know what they want; but think they are in tavor of vidaurri, desiring the destruction of the army, the maintenance of which is guaranteed by the plan of Ayutla.

The prohibitionists, baving as their organs the Heraldo and perhaps the Patria, reject the Ceballos tariff, of which the plan of Ayutla proclaims the re-establishment.

The Monitor newspaper is favorable to the modifications of the plan by Messes. Commont, that and Vidaurri, but is not in favor of the plan of the garrison of Mexico.

The conservatives invoke the plan of Ayutla, but do not want its application.

If Mr. Villareal, the real author of the plan, was to teme forward and raise the legitimate standard under which each pretends to act, he would be regarded as a uriosity and langhed at.

Another Accident to a Backing Train on the Camen and Amboy Rairoad.—An accident occurred on the Camen and Amboy Rairoad on Saturday evening, about seven o'clock, which nearly involved the destruction of the train, consisting of three crowded passenger cars, while backing a short distance above frenton, come in cellision with the boom of a scheoner lying in the canal, and which projected across the track. So great was the shock that the end of the rear car of the Irain, which was the front one while backing, was knocked to pieces, and the scats torn up, throwing the passengers in a confused heap in the bottom of the car. The whole train was more or less shattered and crushed, splinters and glass flying in all directions. It was almost a miracle that of few persons were injured; as it was, but two or three passengers were bruised, although every one in the irain was terrified at the crash. Fortunately the conductor, Mr. Barnes, was standing on the front platform, and although to although the conductor, Mr. Barnes, was standing on the front platform, and although the although the conductor, or the whole train would have been plunged into the canal, and the less of life would have been ierrible.— J'Alindelphia Ja-Jaire, Jr. S.

OPENING OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY—SEMON BY THE APRICAN PRIEST ABER MUISRA.

[From the Evening Post.]

We translate from the Monitary Holtian of September 16, the following graphic account of the opening of the legislative Assembly of Hayti, at Port an Prince:—

On Tuesday, the 4th instant, the legislative session of the Capital, and the corps of the imperial Guard, under the orders of the Count de la Crete-a-Fierrot, ranged themselves in front of the Halls of National Representation. The place had been fitted up for this imposing ceremony, at which the Emperor himself was to preside. At eight o'clock in the morning the Emperor appeared, with his ministers, in the midet of his staff, accompanied by the high officials of the crown. A deputation of members from the Chamber of Representatives came forward to receive his Majesty, who entered and took his seat at the side of the Baron de la Simon, President of the Chamber.

Then a magnificent full-length portrait of the Emperor, in his imperial costume, from the penjof M. le Baron Colbert de Lochard, painter to his Majesty, the Emperor, was placed in the recess, where the president of the chamber is seated.

The President pronounced a discourse appropriate to the occasion, and the inaugaration of this picture, which commands admiration, both for the artistic skill which one sees displayed in it, and en account of the eminent personage which it represents, was saluted by a salvo of artillery strength of the bedy announced to his Majesty.

The first part of the ceremonies being completed, his Majesty pronounced the opening discourse.

The Fresident of the bedy announced to his Majesty that the chamber would respond by a message to the address of the accisantions of the deputies, accompanied by the same deputation to the entrance of the hall. A salvo of artillery saluted the deputies, accompanied by the same deputation to the entrance of the hall. A salvo of artillers white the deputies, necessary in the following brilliant description, w and precision.

At seven and a half o'clock, the legislative body, the consults of foreign powers, the public functionaries and employes, the merchants and the pupils of the public schools betook themselves to the cathedral. The marters of cerementes who, as always, discharged their functions with the greatest exactness, assigned to each one his place. At three quarters past seven, the Hayden princes the ministers, the high officials of the crown, the officers of the household of their majesties, the marshals of the emotice, the general staff, and the ladies of the court, presented themselves at the imperial palace to form the ourtge of their majesties. A salvo of artiliery saluted the entire deepy came forward to receive them at the door. When their majesties into the sacred temple, and the entire deepy came forward to receive them at the door. When their majesties had taken their place on the throne, and the imperial princesses had seated themselves at their side, the mass commenced. It was recited with great pomp.

When the mass was concluded, the Abbe Moussa preached a very cloquent sermon, taking for his text the words:—"Nist Deminus edificaverit demum, laboravunt in vanum qui edificant eam."—Je. 126. (Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it.

At the consecration and the Te Deum the artillery repeated its salvos, and after the mass their majesties betook themselves directly to the palace, followed by all the corps that had assisted at this fete, celevrated with so much pomp. In the evening the entire city was illuminated.

[From the Chesinnat Columbian, Oct. 2.]

Several of the aronauts, who on Monday started on the halloon excursion with Mons. Godard, returned yesterday to the city, and give deeply thrilling accounts of their naventures. Our description of their starting left them ficating away in mid-air towards the nor-nor-east. The inexpressible senations experienced at such an altitude were just unshing upon them and their organs of sublimity expanding. The immense concourse of people below seemed moving gently away like morning mists, and the pleasures of the moment dispelled the apprehensions which had paled more than one manly cheek.

The cognetize passed over Mt. Anburn, but could not distinguish the hill sides. Travelling ragidly, or as Col. Latham remarked, beating railread time, they still conversed, through a trumpet, with persons on terra fram. At one time time they saw Cummingsville, College Hill. Mt. Pleasant, Cartbage, Leckland, Reading, Sianon, and a number of other villages at the same time. The farms locked very little, and Mr. Hole profoundly remarked, that had big farm don't amount to much when observed from a builcom." The others smiled, but not being prepared to express an opinion on the subject, made no response. The people who saw them called out to them to dop for supper, cleer and other good things, but the table in the Hotel Godard had been well provided, and all invitations to come down were disregarded.

At last Mons. Godard way a heavy dark cloud in front, and drecting the attention of the cognetize translated to near: There was danger of getting a ducking. They three out talkst, and went rapidly up. Soon deep dark nose covered the earth. The balloon mounted through gavey clouds, while a rattling rain was heard pouring cover from the wishing to get above the rain clouds, and to lighten the car, cast loose the Hotel Godard and th earth.

Mire ballast was thrown out, and an altitude of 17,000 or 17,000 000 feet (accounts vary) attained. At this

Mr. belins; was thrown out, and an altitude of 17,000 or 17,000 600 feet (accounts vary) attained. At this great height some of the passengers were greatly troubled with a rearing—but what or who reared, I not stated. It may have been that this rearing was caused by the bursting of the balloon and the rushing out of the gas, and that the rearing would not have seemed so loud if the cogogars had been safe on solid earth.

What makes this more probable is, that the next thing they perceived they were rapidly coming down.

Amement after the discovery that they were coming down, Mr. Gedard advised them to lay down in the car, and the next following they felt their nest brushing ever the tree tops. Mons. Godard threw out the anchor and pulled away at the valve to let the gas out from the balloon. The wind whirled it through a cornfield until it struck a stump, and Mons. Godard, Cel. Latham and Mr. Hele were thrown out of the car. Mr. Godard had his after a stump, and Mons. Godard, Cel. Latham and Mr. Hele were thrown out of the car. Mr. Godard had his face and legs much bruised and lace-ated. Cel. Latham had his arcle sprained, and his shoulder much bruised.

Mr. Hele had two this broken and was badly bruised.

The only persons left in the car were Mr. Croppen and Mr. Bellman, the latter of whom selzed the valve rope, while Mr. Godard, catching a cord that swung below, pulled with all his might at the badloon. A flow of wind caught the balloon, and dashed it against an old dead tree, which was upset. Mr. Bellman was thrown out of the car, and the old tree falling upon Mr. Crippen planed lim to the earth. Fortunately, except some slight bruises, neither Mr. Crippen no Mr. Bellman were hurt. The party wandered about in the rain and mind for half an hour, when they came to a farm house, where they were properly cared for.

The place where the balloon came down was within three miles of Waynesville, and about fifty miles from this city. Mr. Hole being serionsly hurt and under medical treatment, it has not been considere

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL. MONEY MARKET.

MONEY MARKET.

MONDAY, Oct. 8—5 P. M.

The stock market to-day presents no new feature. A very large amount of business was transacted, generally at better prices. All the leading State stocks, railroad bonds, railroad stocks and fancy stocks were in active demand. Cumberland advanced ½ per cent; Eric, ½; Michigan Southern, ½; Reading, ½; Hudson River Railroad, 1; Michigan Central, ½; Panama ½; Illinois Central, ½; Galena and Chicago, ½. New York Central 7's declined ½ per cent; Harlem, ½; Cleveland and Pittsburg, ½. The operations in State stocks at the first board were unusually heavy, generally at prices current on Saturday. Indiana 5's and Virginia 6's were most freely offered, but the sales were principally on time. A bear sale of $50,000 Virginia 6's was made at 96, seller six months, which is 1½ per cent under the cash price. Illinois Central bonds sold to the extent of $70,000 he principal Western railroad stocks were in demand at higher prices. Michigan Southern, Galena and Chicago, Chicago and Rock Island sold to a moderate extent, and closed firm at the advance. Reading Railroad was active, without any great change in prices. It sold in large lots, and a great deal of cash stock was effored. Cumberland without any great change in prices. It sold in large lots, and a great deal of cash stock was offered. Cumberland Coal is moving up steadily. Speculators have, we believe, determined upon an inflation, and many outsiders may be induced to take a "flyer" just for the fun and excitement of the thing. If they make short work of it, there may be no great danger.

ur estimate of earnings for this road in September, made a ew weeks since, was $240,000. The company's estimate, made in May last, was $180,000. The management soexceedingly cautious and careful in all their estimates that they are invariably below the mark. Their estimator the year ending May 1, 1856, was $2,000,000 gross. an increase of thirty-three and a third per cent on th previous year. The actual earnings in the first an rest five months have been $1,090,559, against $591,11 for the corresponding period last year—an increase of nearly 160 per cent, and an increase of fifty per cent on the company's estimate for the same time. There is not another railroad company on this continent that can sho anything like this. It is particularly gratifying to us t see such results, for it assures us that the most sanga anticipations of these who may have been induced by ou epresentations to invest in the stock of this company iii be more than realized. The character of the men who compose the management of this model road is such as to command great confidence in the public mind. They are ent; Philip A. Hall, Assistant Superintendent; John Heley, Chief Engineer; W. M. Larrabee, Secretary; Samue Howe. Treasurer. There is no Peter Funkism about this concern. Everything is bona fide, real, sub-tantial and the ultimate resources of the road are beyond all completension. It is connected with nearly one thousand miles of read, penetrating the most fertile and productive sections of Illine's, Iowa, and Wisconsin; and as that count

HORSEMANSHIP. WRITTEN BY A LADY ON VISITING W. H. DIS

wa Rading Academy, Fish avenue, New It stands upon an eminence, Upon a lofty site, Near where the Crystal Palace glows, Teeming with lustre bright. The architecture bears a stamp Of strength as well as saul; 'Tis spacious, and a perfect style Both each department fill.

There is an elegance throughout, Elaborately display'd— Refinement in arrangement made, Judiciously array'd.

Nothing is warning to complete The nobleness of plan; No city can its rival show, If earth's domains we scan. To mount upon a prancing steed In such a school as this Must fill the healthful with delight, The invalid with bilss.

For light and life and loveliness
Here, luminate the scene—
Here by a graceful exercise
May beauty's freshness gleam.

Description falleth very abort,
When we would praise bestow,
In favor of this edifice,
And its rare beauties show. Of him who is as teacher known, Tis vain to sound his praise; He has unrival'd held his post For years as well as days. The art of riding gracefully, With elegance and ease,

As gentleman he guides aright The pupils he doth rule; He gives a finish to the style Of this his noble school.

A corresponding dignity
Is in deportment shown,
Which makes the student cen
The art he's made his own. If merit is rewarded,
He will have ample share;
He studies every way to please
The most fastidious fair.
